GENERAL SATISFACTION RACING UNION'S NEW RULES.

GIRTH MEASUREMENT REGULATION WILL PROof North America seem to have given general satisfaction among the New-York yachtsmen who have been seen. The new regulations have been framed and agreed to by men chosen for their ability in all matters pertaining to yacht-racing, and they came om all parts of the United States and Canada to be the spokesmen for clubs of this continent, numbering about one hundred and seventy. They represent the active racing communities of the coun try, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and, as stated in their report, they have not come to their present conclusions without a vast deal of study of existing and proposed systems for the control of yacht-carried more weight than that of Louis M. Clark, of Boston. This experienced yachtsman represented thirty-one yacht clubs in the Yacht Racing As-sociation of Massachusetts, which is the most active racing fraternity in America. After the meeting Mr. Clark said: "I am satisfied to give the girth rule a fair trial. The fact that it has sated designers and first-rate amateur sailors for several years, in a country where competition is keen, is one to be considered, and it is certain that a change from our old length-and-sail-area rule has been demanded. All the formulas that have lately been proposed are in some ways objections.

ble, and I am in favor of the girth rule, because it suggests fewer possible objections than any other."
One of the strongest points in favor of the new measurement rule is that it facilitates international racing more than anything yet proposed on this side of the ocean. As it is now, the American and English yachts will be designed under practically side of the ocean. As it is now, the American and English yachts will be designed under practically the same limitations, and each nation can send boats to the racing courses of the other without feeling that they are penalized by local measurement rules. One reason for not sending the Defender across to England was that she would be penalized by her excessive draught under the English girth rule. For precisely the same reason the Valkyrie III has remained at her moortings in Gourock Bay ever since she returned from America. She could not reasonably face a boat of the same elength to which she had to give a prohibitive time allowance. Thus the two best yachts in the world were in effect rendered useless by antagonistic rules. Being both built specially for America Cupcontests, which allow untaxed draught, they were structurally excluded from subsequent racing among ine best yachts of their class. And a most important point is this, that, unless the New-York Yacht Club comes into the same system of measurement, all subsequent defenders and challengers will be useless except for one race. They are too deep for the reneral run of harbors in both countries, and consequently not desirable as cruisers tries, and consequently not desirable as cruisers tries, and consequently not desirable as cruisers and consequently not aestrable as cruisers in the New-York Yacht Club will be practically shut out from all races except those of its own club. With the tax on great depth, it can race neither in its own country nor in England with any hope of success. In some ways it may have been a good thing for the New-York Yacht Club to take no notice of the Yacht Racing Union of North America, but the exclusiveness seems likely to cost more than any racing club can afford to pay. The girth rule is now established for both America of England. It is a fixure. But it is not too late to save the hoats to be built for the next cup races from being useless except for one contest. A proposal to build both craft under the inevitable girth r

SHERMAN HOYT TAKES DOUBLE HONORS. In one of the final knockabout races of the Sea-wanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club, sailed on Saiur-Say at Oyster Bay, eight boats started for the prize Jay at Oyster Bay, eight boats started for the prize presented by Henry A. Van Liew, rear-commodore of the club. This contest was the last of the series races for the knockabout class, and the prize offered by former Commodore E. C. Benedict to the yacht holding the best average in the series was also sailed for. The course was three times around a triangle between the Middle Ground buoy and Coldspring Harbor, and then up Oyster Bay to the buoy off Moses Point, with a final run to a finish off the clubhouse. The following boats confested: The Keewaydin, R. C. Wetmore: the Natkode F. D. Sherman: the Heron F. H. Benedict; the limpshee, Miss Helen Benedict; the Burr, Nelson B. Burr, and the Taifu, George Bullock. A son B. Burr, and the Taifu, George Bullock. A pleasant sailing breeze sent the yachts over the course in good time. Sherman Hoy's Stella, which has been a frequent winner this year, took first place. F. S. Hastings, with the Wyntije, came in second. The Stella takes both the Van Liew and the Benedict cups.

THE YACHT REVERIE BREAKS HER BOW. Early on Saturday morning the steam yacht Reverie was coming into anchor inside Sandy Hook when she met with an accident which will probably cost a new stemplece. In a heavy fog probably cost a new stemplece. In a heavy fog that shut out everything from sight she was feeling her way in at reduced speed, when through a miscalculation of position she ran into the wharf near the military station. The men of the life-saving station at Sandy Hook went out to the yacht later on and reported that she was all safe. The stem was crushed a good deal, but above water, and there was nothing to prevent a return for repairs at New-York. The Reverie belongs to Frederick G. Bourne, of the New-York Yacht Club.

Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Coles, sister of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, has purchased a thirty-seven-foot steam ambulance launch and has presented it to the authorities of the military hospital at San-tiago. The craft has been shipped South on the transport Berlin. Mrs. Coles is the president of the Red Cross Auxiliary No. 1.

The schooner yacht Una, which was found by Captain William Norman to be on fire off Fiftyfifth-st. South Brooklyn, has been towed to the Erie Basin for repairs. She will require a new mainmast and extensive internal rebuilding. The mysterious four men who were seen leaving the yacht when she was on fire have not yet been found by the police. Miss Helen Gould, president of the Woman's War Relief Association, has bought from Seabury & Co. a twenty-eight foot steam launch, which has been sent to Santiago to be used by the hospital officials as an ambulance launch.

The return match between the knockabouts of the Seawanhaka Corinthian and Philadelphia Corinthian Yacht clubs will probably be sailed next month. The contests will take place at the station off the Philadelphia Club at Essington. Arrangements are said to be completed for this interclub ficet contest, and the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club will send not less than three of its one-design kneckabouts.

NEW CHURCH OF THE DIVINE PATERNITY. The handsome new Church of the Divine Pater nity (Universalist), at Central Park West and Seventy-sixth-st., was dedicated yesterday.

The church was crowded to its utmost capacity yesterday morning, and chairs had to be placed in the aisles. Many stood during the services. The ne asses. Many stood during the services. The new organ was tried for the first time in an organ prelude by J. Warren Andrews. Following the organ prelude came the invocation by the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Eaton, the pastor, who conducted the services and made an address. Among other things Dr. Eaton said:

Dr. Eaton said:

We are glad to welcome all into our new house of worship. In moving to this uptown locality we are not here to block the wheels of other churches or to change the current of religious feeling, but with a determination to join forces in this part of the town with the other churches for the good of all. All are welcome to this church, no matter what their creeds or professions may be. Let those who desire to worship come whether they have pews or not.

or not.

Dr. Eaton then paid a high tribute to the Board of Trustees and the Building Committee for their excellent work in superintending the building of the church. The unveiling of the memorial windows followed Dr. Eaton's address. Dr. Eaton paid a high tribute to those in whose honor and memory the memorials were given, and told of their work and connection with the church. A contrait solo, "O Rest in the Lord," by Mrs. Jennie King Morrison, followed.

In his regular sermon Dr. Eaton talked of the

WORLD'S EXPOSITION
OF ART IN DRESS

This, by way of preface.

Six times, during the last nine years, have the world's accepted leaders in dress design exhibited their best under national auspices and encouragement. These were the International Expositions of Paris, Chicago, Vienna, Brussels, Berlin and Copenhagen.

The exhibition opened this morning at this store exceeds in extent and variety all these national efforts except the first.

In speaking of our exhibit of last Spring, we said: "This is not intended as a mercantile enterprise. It is a demonstration of power."

No better words can be found to characterize the present effort, although it is nearly four times greater than that of last season.

Some Exhibitors

WORTH—The fame of this house, believed by many to be jeopar-dized by the death of its foundized by the death of its foun-der, has, under the efforts of his talented sons, Jean and Gaston, reached heights never known during the elder Worth's lifetime. The house is represented in this exhibition by a number of dinner dresses —its specialty.

now guarded by the son of him who first gained it, and, as in the case of Worth, the son seems to excel the father. We have afternoon reception and evening gowns,—personal efforts of Edouard Doucet himself.

FRANCIS—A meteor or a new planet? Only a boy in years, he has gained in the last eight months some of the most astonishing triumphs that have ever been won in the dressmaking field. His style is the very ing field. His style is the very essence of daring originality, his effects as exquisitely beautiful as they are dashingly effective. We have three of his most characteristic productions.

MME. AGNES-Formerly a designer recently founded a business of her own, which her superb abilities and her charming personality rendered instantly successful. She was selected to design a part of the Coronation Trosseau of the little Queen of Holland. She has made copies of a number of on exhibition, together with other express productions.

SARA MAYER ET MORHANGE-For fifteen years Sara Mayer has held an undisputed position and an unrivaled reputation. She is a specialist of many specialties. There appears to be no limit to her resources, no end to her fertility of invention. Masterpiece succeeds masterpiece, triumph eclipses triumph. We have her latest productions in both afternoon and evening gowns, and many wraps.

LAFERRIERE, who takes pride in showing his letter of appointment as Couturier to the Princess of Wales has sent us three street costumes. His specialty is dignity. gowns now on view have all the characteristic quiet richness that has made him famous.

ROUFF—The fashion sorcerer of the Boulevard Hausmann, brilliant, erratic, weird, uncanny in his methods,—a designer for ex-tremists. His ambition is "Efit is produced, so that it is beautiful. As a designer for evening and ball dresses, especially for younger wearers, he probably has no equal in Europe. He sends us several characteristic productions.

Something of the Exhibition

Matters of We show to-day, to-morrow and Wednesday, a collection of the latest and greatest productions Genius of the leading dressmakers of the world.

Whether these magnificent efforts may with propriety be termed works of art, is for your own definition and opinion. That they are productions of paramount genius there can be no question.

Eminence in the dressmaking world cannot be attained DOUCET—A name known through the civilized world. Its fame is There are fewer great dressmakers than great painters, and There are fewer great dressmakers than great painters, and there is reason for it. Imagine twenty centuries of painters confined to a single decorative subject! Would he not be and this Fall we have been asked to give representation to their works by many designers who have never before allowed their names to be associated with any mercantile house. Our representative has been enabled to command the talents of nearly of the house of Doucet, she all of the most important private dressmakers in Europe, whose productions cannot be seen elsewhere in America except as worn by the few American women who can secure their services.

Hap-Hazard Choice Every costume shown in this immense collection was ordered, designed, made "Special Command" and imported expressly for this house and for this occasion. Every one represents a special effort on these pieces for us which are the part of a recognized genius to produce something a little better than her best. Each is the direct production of the artist personally, -not of an assistant or subordinate. It is not the every-day collection of "imported gowns," chosen haphazard, turned out en-masse, and labelled with famous names.

> Overgarments and In addition to the showing of costumes is the exhibit of coats, paletots, redingotes, Underwear ulsters and carriage and evening wraps. They are produced by specialists distinct from the dressmakers, but scarcely less celebrated. The famous house of Hubert & Riquer is well represented, together with the latest productions from Seyriet-Briaumont, Loriot, Morhange, Gerson, Pach and a dozen others. The garments are all express productions for Wanamaker's. The collection includes a remarkable assortment of Fur Garments from Gerson, Grunwaldt and others.

The Lingerie deserves extended mention to itself. It is a His marvellous collection. In the production of these exquisite garments we have been favored with the personal assistance and efforts of Mlle. Corne to an unusual extent, and her contributions, with those of Elise Poret (her former partner) and the indescribably beautiful productions of Berthelemot, in Tea Gowns, Negligee Jackets, and Peignons, are features of the showing. The collection of Children's Garments, by MME. PORET-Formerly a partner fect!" and he cares little how Reveille, Berthelemot, Tellier, Merlet, Carthelet and others, is especially important; as well as a very large showing of Silk Waists from Parisian, Berlin and Vienna designers.

Some Exhibitors

BLANCHE LEBOUVIER-At present, this talented woman is on the top wave of success. She is a top wave of success. She is a comparative new-comer among the world's leaders of dress design, but holds her position through sheer merit and sustained effort. She is, beyond doubt, the most sought after private designer in Paris this season. It was stated that this year's Grand Prix. the greatest fashion event of Paris, was "a Lebouvier exposition." Her specialty lies in afternoon gowns. gowns.

confined to a single decorative subject! Would he not be rare, and justly great, that at this day produced a new effect, a new beauty, a new method of treatment?

Those who have succeeded in this feat along dressmaking lines, become famous almost in a day, but they are few. The world recognizes them gladly,—but still they are few.

Here are the greatest of them.

The Success Given Our exhibit of last spring was the subject of much comment in Paris and Vienna, by Success

Our exhibit of last spring was the subject five Drecoll productions,—chiefly afternoon dresses.

STAMMLER & JEANNE—This is a well-known firm to many American women. Jeanne is the designer and first acquired fame when associated with Raudnitz when that house was at its prime. She is one of the first of the "mercantile designers" and has many American patrons. We show five unique gowns from her par-

MLLE. CORNE—The success of this wonderful little woman has been marvelous but deserved. Formerly an unimportant assistant at Calvayrac's, later an instantly successful designer of lingerie, now an unquestioned leader in dress designing. She has no rival in her especial forte, which is daintiness.

MME. HAVET—Well known for some five years to a select few only, she has suddenly become famous. This is her first public exhibit, however. For some vears she has been the designer for other dressmakers, and many notable successes have been due to her. The gowns she sends to this exposition will prove her right to personal popularity and prosperity.

ANDRE GOUPY—His first American exhibit. He is especially distinguished for his use of lace, and his lace dresses. In this regard he has no rival. The gowns from his hands shown here are markedly character-of Mile. Corne in the designing of lingerie, she has emulated the latter's success as a dress designer. She now, for the first, time, exhibits publicly. Like her more famous partner, her best effects are reached through daintiness and simplicity.
